

UPCOMING EVENTS
IN THE NEWS
AWARDS

September 24 2014

IN THE NEWS

Julia Morgan, FAIA: California's Gold

AIACC
By Sandhya Sood
23 September 2014

Sandhya Sood (M.Arch '99) has studied, conducted research and written extensively on Julia Morgan's, FAIA, work with a focus on sustainability. As the sustainability expert, Sood's work was included in the nomination materials presented to the AIA Gold Medal Selection Committee and contributed to the success of the nomination. Sandhya Sood has closely studied Julia Morgan, and the Mayor of Berkeley, Tom Bates, will recognize her October 7 with a proclamation for my contributions to preserving the history of Julia Morgan and the City of Berkeley.

The American Institute of Architects Board of Directors posthumously awarded the AIA Gold Medal to Julia Morgan. The early 20th-century architect's body of quality work secured her position as the first great female American architect. Morgan is the first woman to ever be given the AIA Gold Medal. By receiving the award, Morgan was elevated to the College of Fellows.

Campus schools offer real estate program for graduate students

Daily California
By Isaac Smith
21 September 2014

UC Berkeley's College of Environmental Design, the Haas School of Business and the UC Berkeley School of Law launched a real estate certificate program aimed at training graduate students to face the challenges of modern urban development.

The Interdisciplinary Graduate Certificate in Real Estate, launched in spring, is open to all graduate students and is composed of courses in planning and design, financial and market analysis, the legal foundations of construction and transaction and housing and land use policy.